

Abstract

The invention relates to a process for the production of half-tubes (24, 26) or tubes of a recuperative waste gas heat
5 exchanger (10) using a precision casting process, in which the half-tubes (24, 26) or tubes consisting of a high-temperature-resistant metallic material have a plurality of elliptical openings (22) passing through their surface (20).

10 Fig. 3